Id. at ¶ 11. However, the court did not make specific reference to any information that was newly discovered or obtained within the time constraint set forth in RCFC 59(f)(2). Id. at ¶ 10. 11 It is true that, as defendant argues, RCFC 59(f)(2) requires plaintiff to file a motion to reconsider within 60 days of the date of the order disposing of his original motion for reconsideration. See Roche, 71 Fed. Cl. at 671 ("[I]t is true that RCFC 59(f) requires that a motion for reconsideration be filed within 60 days of the entry of the underlying order."). However, plaintiff has satisfied the 60-day time constraint set forth in RCFC 59(f)(2) by refiling his motion to reconsider the motion to dismiss following the court's denial of his original motion to reconsider. Id. at 671 (allowing plaintiff's motion to reconsider to relate back to the filing of his original motion to reconsider when the motion was filed within 60 days of the court's denial of his original motion to reconsider (citing Martinez v. United States, 333 F.3d 1295, 1304 (Fed. Cir. 2003))). Accordingly, plaintiff's refiled motion to reconsider, filed more than one year after the date of the court's order granting the motion to dismiss, was timely filed. See Rule 6(e) ("The day of the event that triggers the running of a period of time
